Commission Scales up EU’s Response to Cyber-Attacks

On 13th September, President Jean-Claude Juncker used his annual State of the Union Address, to announce that the European Commission and the High Representative are proposing a wide-ranging set of measures to build strong cybersecurity in the EU.

This includes a proposal for an EU Cybersecurity Agency to assist Member States in dealing with cyber-attacks, as well as a new European certification scheme that will ensure that products and services in the digital world are safe to use.
