Sam Smith Coordinator
medConfidential

Sam Smith is a coordinator at medConfidential, having previously worked at Privacy International on the Communications Data Bill, and before that in academia. medConfidential is an independent non-partisan organisation campaigning for confidentiality and consent in health and social care, which seeks to ensure that every flow of data into, across and out of the NHS and care system is consensual, safe and transparent. They’re probably best known for their work on care.data, which was where NHS England tried to grab the most GP data it thought it could get away with selling without anyone minding. It didn’t entirely go as they planned.
